CRAB ORCHARD.

—It is exceedingly dry and farmers predict a scarcity of Fall grass without we have copious showers in the next few days.

—Madam Record Jones is here in the interest of the simplest, cheapest and best chart we have ever seen. Mr. Bob White, her agent, is with her.

—Mrs. J. R. Lawless returned to Lexington last week. Mr. Lawless has nearly completed his new cottage, which will be very convenient and cosy.

—Mr. James B. Leavell, was here last week. Mrs. Irene Burke and children are at W. F. Dillon's. Mrs. E. W. Jones of Pineville, is with friends here. Charley Singleton returned from Louisville to be present at the sale which occurs next Saturday.

—R. H. Bronaugh received a few days since his second importation of thoroughbred Durac Red Jersey swine this season, and they are beauties. Good judges pronounce Mr. Bronaugh's herd the best they ever saw. He tells he has in his herd hogs from the very best herds in Ohio and Illinois. They grow to be very large, with proper treatment weighing from 700 to 1,000 lbs. at from 18 months to two years old and fatten at any age. John Buchanan sold to Wm. Moreland 35 fat hogs at $c. Wm. Moreland bought ten veal calves of various parties around town at from $2 to $4 per head.

—We have seen two mothers recently whose hearts are nearly broken over the drunkenness of their sons; both bright boys just entering manhood, but entering it through the broad gate. We know those boys well; know they have plenty of feeling for the sorrow of others and that each loves his mother with a true devotion, yet they will every few days open fresh the wounds they have made in mother's heart by getting drunk. The sighs and tears and prayers of mothers and sisters seem powerless to check them and they go on and on giving way in their weakness to their terrible thirst for whisky. One of these mothers is afraid of her boy! Just think of it! Afraid of the child who has been her life-long care and study; for whom she would endure every privation, undergo every suffering; who has been her constant pride from babyhood to man's estate—think of this child causing his mother to tremble with fear; to hide when she hears him coming, because she is afraid he will kill her or some member of the family while drunk! Oh! boys, I wished very much for you to have been near enough to have heard the sighs that came from the heart you have so nearly broken! To have seen the tears as they trickled down the furrows that your conduct has made in the cheek of your best, truest friend when she talked of the condition you were in Saturday, and said with choked voice that she did not know what to do, she had said all she could say, and would have to let him go! Think for a moment of the world pitying your mother over your treatment of her! Now don't let her feel this way any longer. Resolve to be men, for you alone can do this; turn your back on whisky and those who use it. They get your brains, your money, your reputation, and leave you without a stail to help you in life, not fit to live, not good enough to die. When you read these lines say "I can and will show the world I am still worthy of respect and trust," for many eyes are upon you; many know the good you can do, many would be glad to give you a lift out of this mire if you will but let them.

—Pierre Lorillard's great race horse, Lamplighter, was sold to G. Walburn, the Guttenberg turf magnate, for $20,000. Mr. Lorillard paid $30,000 for him.

—A blooming jay, who was too poor to take a paper, sent $2 to a yankee to learn how to stop a horse from sloshing and received this information, "Learn him to spit."

—The Madison county fair grounds were sold at auction Saturday to Shelby Irvine for $6,300. They include 374 acres of land, an amphitheatre, houses, stables, track, &c.

—In the first section of the live stock exhibit at the World's Fair, closing last Saturday, Kentucky won 24 first prizes, 16 second prizes, 7 third prizes and four fourth prizes, besides 4 medals and one $250 cup.

—William M. Wilcher, of Carpenter's Creek, Casey county, died on the 7th inst. of typhoid fever. On the 8th his funeral was preached at Roberts Chapel by Rev. John Kirk.

"At early morn to work he goes,
Through wintry rain and sleet;
In summer when he reaps and mows
He pants beneath the heat;
And what he earns he shares with me,
How very thankful I should be."

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL

STANFORD, KY., SEPTEMBER 12, 1893

W. P. WALTON.

6 OR 8 PAGES.
EVERY FRIDAY.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Representative,

HARVEY HELM.

For Superintendent of Public Schools,

W. F. MCCLARY.

JUSTICE is usually very slow and often times not so sure, but South Carolina has just furnished an example that the other States in general and Kentucky in particular, would do well to emulate. She "hung by the neck until he was dead, dead, dead, and may God have mercy on his soul," a rich and influential man, whose wealth and position only served to delay the doom that seemed inevitable from the first. The victim of the gibbet was a perfect Apollo, weighed 200 pounds and had a most distinguished air. He killed two men and by suborned witnesses went acquit. But when he drugged and outraged his sister-in-law and killed her brother for interfering, it was more than even lax laws could stand or his large fortune stay except for a season. He met his ignominious death in the cringing manner becoming the coward that he was and society breathed easier when his body, did the "dull thud" act. If all murderers could receive a like portion, this country would cease to be ridden rough shod by men who thirst for human blood and satiate their infernal appetites on it.

The appointment of Hon. Albert S. Willis to minister to Hawaii is a good one. Mr. Willis represented the Louisville district in Congress very creditably and was only retired because he stuck to Mrs. Virginia Thompson for postmaster instead of getting her place for a democrat. In other words his people thought that he was more of a Campbellite than a democrat and elected Ash Caruth over him. They got a democrat in so doing, but that is all. Ash's recital of "What I done" can be told in few words. He gets all the pensions, offices and appropriations he can for his district without regard to right or justice. In fact, as one of his constituents remarked, he is simply an attorney for his people, with never the suspicion of a statesman about him.

WHAT a fall my countrymen! From the editor of a great daily to a common, every day noser after a social scandal, Col. C. E. Sears, the erstwhile head of a great moral engine, is now engaged in getting up material for a big sensation anent the Breckinridge-Pollard affair. The believers in Wattersophobia think this is naturally the result of an unusually rapid case of that disease and feel that he has brought the punishment upon himself. Can not Bro. Knott, of the Louisville Post, read the handwriting on the wall or will he continue to fly in the face of fate?

The Richmond Register doesn't see how Hon. D. B. Edmiston can neglect his duties as storekeeper and gauger to become a candidate for Clerk of the Senate. There is nothing hard about that. Mr. Edmiston has already made his calling and election sure to the clerkship and all he will have to do will be to get a furlough for 60 days and fill it. The offices are not incompatible, the clerkship not being of the class that a man cannot hold two of at the same time.

The Hon. Hamilton Fish, Grant's second Secretary of State, died of heart failure at Garrison, N. Y., a few days ago, aged 85. He was an original whig, but evolved into a republican and beside the office named he was governor and lieutenant governor of the Empire State, congressman and U. S. Senator. For more than half a century he served the public and though not much of a statesman he acted well his part and there all the honor lies.

The Owensboro Messenger pays a deserved compliment to Mr. Cicero T. Sutton, its retiring city editor, who has filled the position most worthily for six years. He has resigned to take charge of the Princeton Banner, which he has purchased. Mr. Sutton is an all around newspaper man and one of the most capable, as he is the most hard-working in the State. The Banner will be carried high in the advance of the column hereafter.

SCIENTISTS say that a frog cannot breathe with its mouth open. It's a pity that some people were not built that way, and that when they stroll around with their mouths open it would shut off their breaths forever and a day. They do not seem to appreciate the old adage which says "keep your eyes open but your mouth shut."

The only woman who was ever known to hit what she threw at with a rock, killed her man at Bloomington. Her name is Mrs. George McAfee and she ought to be exhibited at the World's Fair as the greatest living curiosity.

It makes his friends shudder to think how near Col. Emmett G. Logan came to being made a damned moist corpse while on a visit to Hon. Harvey Myers at Covington. Sunday's Enquirer tells how he was awakened during the night by a supposed burglar in his room and how in order to pursue him, the editor inadvertently slipped on his breeches with the rearward to the frontward and was about to send a poor little pet monkey to kingdom come, when Mr. Myers rushed to the scene and snapped his pistol at the comical looking case. Fortunately it didn't go off, but the two did, after explanations were made, and devoutly knelt down by the side of the refrigerator, and after striking the combination, opened it and joined together in drinking a glass of Hires' root beer, and with hands clasped vowed that henceforth and hereafter that particular brand would be their drink for life. The story hath the flavor of a fishy odor throughout, but the last recital proves the story a fake, or the reporter didn't know his men as well as some of the rest of us do.

It is a girl after all and it arrived Saturday afternoon. The child had been born in the White House and that added interest to the event, which is usually interesting enough. The uncrowned queen of American womanhood is doing nicely and so is the little one, who is said to be just like her mamma. The president is also doing as well as could be expected, but Baby Ruth is as mad as she can be.

It is pretty certain that Hon. G. M. Davison will make the race for the senate for the republicans in this district, which is a close one. Mr. Davison's plan of campaigning is not of the most high-toned and approved order, but it has proved successful on several occasions, so this warning is printed that the democrat may be on their guard and not be caught by still hunters.

The primary for the selection of a democratic candidate for mayor and other municipal officers in Louisville comes off to-day and the papers of that city will perhaps find something else to print about and give us a rest, for which relief let us give much thanks.

The Iowa prohibitionists must intend to bury their hopes this year. They have nominated a Coffin for governor and each of them proposes to drive a nail in it.

SOME WORLD'S FAIR NOTES.

I could not get half of what I wanted in Friday's letter so I give a few additional notes of curiosities and other wonderful things to be seen at the great Fair:

In the German exhibit is a diamond valued at $100,000.

Occupying the centre of the rotunda of the administration building is an exact reproduction of the United States Treasury at Washington constructed entirely of souvenir dollars. It is about as large as a small hen house and is wonderfully constructed. The number of pieces of coin has not been told. A guessing contest with a big prize will reveal the total.

The greatest object of curiosity in the Pennsylvania building is the old Liberty Bell, crack and all. It is jealously guarded by men who seem to fear that even a look will injure it.

The cradle in which the two Adamses, John and John Quincy, afterwards presidents of the United States, were rocked, is in the Massachusetts building, which contains many relics of the old colonial days.

In the Government exhibit is one of the large trees from California. It is hollowed out and is as large as an ordinary size room inside. A four-horse wagon could easily drive through the doors cut in it.

There is a leather belt, for machinery, 203 feet long,  $\frac{1}{2}$  wide and 3 ply. It took 500 hides to make it and its weight is 5,176 pounds. It is the largest ever made.

In the Horticultural building is a miniature of the magnificent New York capitol, made entirely of white flowers. It is certainly a present beauty if not a joy forever.

In the street of Cairo, which is in the Plaisance, camels and native donkeys are for hire and are attended by real Egyptians for the camels, but the little ones, who lead the donkeys are evidently negroes raised in this country. A ride on a camel costs von 25 and on a donkey 15 cents. The camels lie down on cushions when not at work and when they get up with their load it is quite amusing to watch the persons. The dromedary rises hind end first and then with a terrific lunge he gets on his fore feet, while the riders look like they will be thrown to kingdom come. The street is exactly like the original, but it looks a little incongruous to see bar-rooms placarded "Milwaukee Beer 5¢" at several points along the thoroughfare.

The Moorish Palace, situated near the Ferris wheel in the Plaisance, is one of the most interesting places to visit. It contains reproduction of Spain's Alhambra, a puzzling magic maze of 1,000 mirrors placed in every conceivable position, the guillotine with which Marie Antoinette was beheaded as well as a panorama of the mob and execution in wax, and what is said to be the finest collection of life like wax figures in the world. There is also an optical illusion theatre—three acts, during which the Fabian sisters sing in 10 different languages.

The Samoan village presents the home life of the natives in their thatched cottages. In one of them is a man who for a small fee will show you how fire is made from rubbing sticks together, a process we have all heard of but few seen. They have, as do most of the villages, a theatre also, in which the most unique of performances are given.

There are eight lakes, called lagoons, in the grounds, all connected and all navigable by small boats. They cover 61 acres and surround a large island embracing 16 acres, which is covered with trees, shrubbery and flowers from every State. The grounds lie along the lake, a beautiful view of which is had and the seats along it are always crowded with spectators. A reproduction of La Rahaia, the convent in which Columbus conceived the idea of the world's roundness, is located on the shore.

It is said that the art building contains five miles of galleries, all filled with pictures and statuary. It is a good day's work to walk through it alone, besides a most pleasing and instructive one.

The electrical building is the most brilliantly lighted establishment in the world. In it night is absolutely turned to day and the scene is brilliant beyond description. Heroic pictures of Columbus and Benjamin Franklin, formed of incandescent lights, are presented in every color and shade imaginable and they are a source of real wonder. It takes 22,000 horse power engines to drive the dynamos in this building.

The California exhibit is a show in itself. This state appropriated a greater amount, $600,000, than any other and her display is on the grandest and most comprehensive scale. Each of the principal counties have exhibits of their wonderful fruits, flowers and other distinguishing features and they are almost beyond imagination. A huge pyramid of oranges of immense size strikes the beholder on entering the building and he is kept in a series of surprises as long as he remains.

There are various means of cheap transportation from the city, 8 miles away, to the grounds. Electric cars, railroads, steamboats, Tally Hics, &c., &c. The elevated railway, which starts at Congress, near State, is perhaps the best as it is the cheapest, 5 cents a trip. The cars leave every 24 minutes each way and the crowds on them in the early morning and late afternoon are fearful to get in?

RETURNING from Chicago we had as traveling companions Mr. T. G. Watkins, city editor of the Courier-Journal, and his handsome wife. They had spent 10 days at the Fair and still were anxious for more, but Mr. Watkins' duties imperatively demanded his return. He informed us that it was understood that the Kentucky Commissioners had not expended half of the $100,000 appropriation and that they would likely return to the treasury at least $40,000. This is gratifying after seeing the manner of display they have, but the money was intended to be spent and ought to have been spent in judiciously advertising our resources.

After one has visited the Fair, he is ready to agree with the calculator that to spend five minutes at each exhibit it would take you 26 years to see them all.

An intramural railway, run by electricity, conveys passengers inside the grounds for 10 cents a ride or round trip. It is elevated and a pretty good general view of the buildings can be obtained from it. The other means of transportation are chairs on rollers, pushed by men who also act as guides. The price of a chair has been reduced to 25 a day or 50 cents an hour. The same chairs can be hired at 25c an hour if you do your own pushing. There are many seats in the grounds in places, but they are nearly always filled. For 25c a day you can get a little camp stool, weighing less than 5 pounds, which you can carry along with you and sit down when even a look will injure it.

It is said that the art building contains five miles of galleries, all filled with pictures and statuary. It is a good day's work to walk through it alone, besides a most pleasing and instructive one.

The electrical building is the most brilliantly lighted establishment in the world. In it night is absolutely turned to day and the scene is brilliant beyond description. Heroic pictures of Columbus and Benjamin Franklin, formed of incandescent lights, are presented in every color and shade imaginable and they are a source of real wonder. It takes 22,000 horse power engines to drive the dynamos in this building.

The California exhibit is a show in itself. This state appropriated a greater amount, $600,000, than any other and her display is on the grandest and most comprehensive scale. Each of the principal counties have exhibits of their wonderful fruits, flowers and other distinguishing features and they are almost beyond imagination. A huge pyramid of oranges of immense size strikes the beholder on entering the building and he is kept in a series of surprises as long as he remains.

There are various means of cheap transportation from the city, 8 miles away, to the grounds. Electric cars, railroads, steamboats, Tally Hics, &c., &c. The elevated railway, which starts at Congress, near State, is perhaps the best as it is the cheapest, 5 cents a trip. The cars leave every 24 minutes each way and the crowds on them in the early morning and late afternoon are fearful to get in?

A GOOD EXCUSE.
Judge—You are charged with having sold milk that had forty per cent. of water in it. What have you to say?
Milk Dealer—An honest man like me, your Honor, couldn't do such a thing.

Judge—But there is clear proof that there was forty per cent. of water in your milk.

Milk Dealer—I can explain that, your Honor. The milk was frozen and I poured boiling water on it in order to melt it. Now, of course, it's quite possible that a few drops of water got mixed with the milk. Schalk.

WHAT HE HAD HEARD.

Neighbor—Your sister is going to marry a very nice man, I hear.

Boy—His father has got fifty thousand dollars, and hasn't any other children, and he's got a rich bachelor uncle who's too old to get married, and he's inherited a lot o' money from his Aunt Jane on his mother's side, and—

Neighbor—I mean he is a very nice man morally, and has good, steady habits.

Boy—Mebby, I don't know. I haven't heard anything about that. —Good News.

PAME'S INJURIES.

From the Troy, Kas., Chie. Some years ago we were very much troubled with a species of chamber-moth, and when we feel any symptoms of this disease, we apply a poultice to the stomach, diarrhoea, etc., we become very sick. We have found Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the very thing to straighten out in cases of colic, diarrhoea, etc., and it is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by W. H. McRoberts, Drug Store, Stanford, Ky.

Among the incidents of childhood that stand out in bold relief, as our memory returns to the days when we were young, none are more prominent than the time when we first learned to walk. The young mother usually remembers that ailment, such as sickness at the stomach, diarrhoea, etc., we become very sick. We have found Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the very thing to straighten out in cases of colic, diarrhoea, etc., and it is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by W. H. McRoberts, Drug Store, Stanford, Ky.

For a lame back or pain in the sole or chest try saturating a piece of flannel with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and binding it onto the affected part. With fingers weary and worn,
On a fabric of yellow and red.

A fair young maiden was hour after hour

Plying her needle and thread.

Stitch, stitch, stitch!

Oh, why do her fingers burn?

And why is she weary? Because, my friends,

It's a nine-yard crinoline skirt.
